

THE AVERAGE

Statistics show a dip in early retirement percentages since 2006. The majority of filers for Social Security around the country, however, decide to start collecting benefits at age 62:

